

IAPA's Canadian Innovation Award for the Promotion of a Healthy & Safer Workplace

Nova Scotia Power

(Left to right - Hon. Kevin O'Brien, Minister of Business, Government of Newfoundland & Labrador, Maureen Shaw, President & CEO, Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Blair Burguynne, Powerline Technician Jayson Myers, President, Canadian Manufacturers & Exporters)

Nova Scotia Power is a recognized leader in Health & Safety Management in the Utility Industry.

With continuous progress toward better safety achievement, safety management programs are ingrained in Nova Scotia Power's corporate culture. Nova Scotia Power's 1,700 employees start each day with 'Seven Minutes of Safety'. Health and safety considerations are top of mind and form the basis upon which business decisions are made.

Nova Scotia Power's focus on health and safety has resulted in fewer employee injuries and illnesses, both at work and home. Between January and July 2007, the company did not have a single lost time incident. The relentless corporate focus on safety helps develop employees who are leaders in moving the issue of health and safety forward in the province of Nova Scotia.

For Nova Scotia Power's proactive Health and Safety Practices they received IAPA's Canadian Innovation Award for the Promotion of a Healthy & Safer Workplace 2007.

Contact:

J. Harris McNamara, Health & Safety Manager

Phone: 902-456-5351

email: j.mcnamara@nspower.ca website: www.nspower.ca

